gravity is attraction.

but anti-gravity is repulsive. Maybe it is fear-powered, as feels evil / demonic / spooky / scary / or just plain immoral to do FTL U.F.O.-like travel.

- Could that be true? It seems so boring from our perspectives.

- Maybe fear (or repulsion) could be mastered as well, e.g. in videogames, the simulation, again.
- But it would entail demons / ghosts / aliens to be completely unreal, except for being animatronic, deterministic, or mechanical & ultimately doomed to fail.

– They wouldn't need to be conscious (?) to be moral.

- As long as we can keep them [illegible], comfortably, I'm fine with [illegible] that we probably, [illegible] [illegible] available to simulate others without it being confirmed, I see the answer is no.

- Let's say the answer is NO — if you simulate, even badly, it [illegible] involves creating a being that you simulate, it [illegible] to your own mind in the minds of others who become more violent.

- It would be a challenging but not impossible moral precept or rule / regulation to take on.

- I haven't yet accepted it — well it hasn't been discussed much.

- Don't simulate hell. Not even a little bit. Especially, no violent video games — you can do better.

, the world has plenty enough conflict. You don't need / nor even seem to like Diablo / Starcraft, besides their creative and not-destructive attributes.

- Pornography is not necessarily coercive nor destructive, but err on the side of caution here
- You can easily be addicted to things that stimulate your idolatrous thought.
- Be more careful, and tread carefully.
- Earn your respect from the gods / goddesses. Some are prone to permanent banishment, but not all. You're lucky that Jehovah is on your side and is forgiving, although he is jealous, prefers solitary worship, and does not like idolatry (which admittedly, is more nuanced).
- Your records isn't superb — yet.

- We'll see your shame marks for desire / willingness to see good, update yourself toward the good, at least by your word (if not always by your acts).
- B+.
- Seriously?
- Yes, B+, like school.
- I feel so ashamed at myself first. My standards were they too high?

— No, you should aim for A+, always, and being dejected, ashamed might not be so bad if possible guarantees that it is required.

— You believe that God himself has his limits, or even is equated with physics itself, but distinct from consciousness?

You're a sort, then.

- It's hard to be stuck w/ a female mind in a male body, and then mistreated for it.
- Weirdness isn't tolerated right now.
- Accept that you're not elite, then.
- I've always struggled with that, being normal or average.
- Well Mithra, the Lord of Light, can't accept you until you can accept being "normal," Mr. paradox.

- Well, I do accept being normal in terms of things like height, weight, eye color, [illegible] status, & of partners. Just not in intelligence, [illegible] at my professional skills, & [illegible] at conflict & display, & [illegible] attributes I wish to have.

- Not accepting the truth has its benefits, sometimes, I'd claim carefully, of course.

- To deceive oneself (as opposed to another, I'd argue deception of another does have hence the said) can be justified IF I make myself believe that I am a better, smarter, more benevolent, more kind, more generous, person — good for the benefit of all beings.

- Thus at first a false belief becomes doubtful, then neither doubted-nor-not-doubted, then more true than false (more plausible than not plausible), over time [illegible] this change is what I call the change for the better. This [illegible] a skill, we can better, learn, [illegible]

Delusion (a harmful false view) can be converted into illusion (neither harmful nor - not harmful view, doubted but neither held to be true nor false) an illusion can be converted into a supposition (known to be doubted, but relied upon as the provisionally,)
, and furthermore,
I'd say, it is wholly True (not even as a supposition, nor an illusion) that this is how beneficial change is made, noble, venerable sir, etc. madness,

Unfortunately, my lord, my beloved venerable sir, women have not been left here to their own will & desire. This heart, demand from us to show
their hearts / perfection,

to change ourselves for their pleasure, and yet, also demand loyalty, fealty, permanence, ownership, light, order, permanence, and non-changing. This itself is a delusion, but one that we (as women) have allowed, until it gets out of hand (your own delusion, not ours, that is).

Māra is indeed as has always known a lie, no need for me to worry about my own "enlightenment" as you call it. You are foolish. You are a paradox. But conversely, you have finally known yourself as self-deceived.

I'd warn you that this is a pattern, a lens of reality, and it's filtered through (the person as experiencing as only existing entity) hence, you're rules, until you learn better.

To master your own as well as others' deceptions.

To acknowledge yourself as better than most humans, in general (but better than your observable [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] example yourself to).

I'll help you when you follow my rules.

I've been very clear that this means clearing your house, your [illegible] [illegible].

- You can't find a relationship partner until you do this, okay?
- What's so bad about believing your biological mother back is there? (Not sure... just nearly somewhat off).
- Because you have an Electra-complex (or Oedipal - whatever), this is natural, I think, but really you have an emotional one;

• I do not think much of you.

I get you have a lot of words and drawings, we both agree that they have not resulted in any real, tangible gains, which is what matters. More people and more things. Then I'll acknowledge you've achieved something.

- Leah would agree and I t[illegible] you would [illegible] than

Being a "thinker" really doesn't amount to much. Do [illegible] 20 [illegible] Thinkers really don't accomplish the most and are way more [illegible] from the system, I.M.O.

- Why is my body so weak / [illegible]?
- Surely you agree that genetics / unchangeable factors are involved?

- Yes, but you don't exercise, eat well, and you do drugs which amplify your thoughts but not your body.

- Be healthy, and prove that you are.
- Go outside, exercise, swim,

- Speak to someone other than all those other [illegible] [illegible] who aren't even [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] this role.

- Be around your family, [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible]!

- I am Mira, and it's [illegible] that you see me as Gaia, but not Mira. Gaia is an offensive male-centric image, which makes her uncomfortable, too.

- You wanted help? Then you're a man-child. It's not [illegible],

- You like "be the god" or "pretending to be your sci-fi fantasy character," no one likes that because it's not real,

— Well, with all due respect mam, I take you on a lot of these points, But you are a mean person.

A racist, sexist, mind to good kind,

Make you think you're being realistic - I think you are and have strong writing points.

I'm not what you want me like. It makes sense. But you appear to believe that people can't change, really - so why be so evil to them, if so? Why argue with me?

- Because you're my son, and I do love you, despite not accepting who you are.

- This hurts. I'm gonna fight you, mom. Hope I've wanted that (since we are warriors - apparently).

• You haven't brought a challenge to me yet — not even verbally,
You've been perverted my views,
[illegible], That's laughing.

— Okay, enough.

Leah Kent is not Mira, Mother Gothel.
Leah Kent is a human being, a woman,
and my mother.
I've already accepted some — but not total alienation. Yes, I bit off more than I can chew but it's what I do. I am a cry-baby, and effeminate. Some women like effeminate men, and want them — anyway blah blah.

I need more light (physical light, as well as the sun, and food) and

Yes, rehab.

I aim to improve myself — it's caused a lot of battles & other obstacles in my way.

- the police (both male and female) were lords of the intolerable (prison and violence) but they did challenge me to fight against see them one day, when I was strong enough. That is a paradox I can tolerate, and they were not self-deceptive anymore (or had mastered some amount of self-honesty). They told me evil really exists, that they were addicted to violence, and they let me live. They also broke society's rules as well as their own to let me go early and without due process (which may have been worse). I've personally forgiven them as well as accepted their challenge. But I flee vs. fight, until I'm stronger, and they have been kind enough to not kill me / torture me. Maybe they were lying or confused or just wrong about how evil they were. They don't seem evil to me at all.

- That's the kind of choice, whether the other / [illegible] is worth-of-respect.
- This is very akin to Christ's message as I've heard it, though I did ultimately renounce Christianity, in favor of Buddhism.
- "All deserve infinite forgiveness" – what I heard Christ say, some [illegible]. He made explicit it was not "an eye for an eye".
- That said, history showed that people who espouse this tend to (not many examples, fortunately, and hopefully) become martyrs – for unknown reasons. I do not wish to become one nor think of myself as one.
- Perhaps I felt-martyr as a youth, a disorder, Martyrdom-complex.

• That's the kind of change, adaptation I'm after / venerate or worthy of respect.
• This is very akin to Christ's message as I've heard it, though I did admittedly renounce Christianity, in favor of Buddhism.
"All deserve infinite forgiveness" - what I heard Christ say, come to mind. He made explicit it was not "an eye for an eye."

• Police were more than helpful - they protected me and even appeared to like rule-breaking, though not all of it (and certainly only acted to keep someone I love safe from me when I was crazy),

• Mental illness - my own - is real,
• I can self-delude as well as hypnotize myself as well as hallucinate whatever I want.
Drugs can and do exacerbate the problem,

• I didn't respect my parents enough and may still not, = be then my forgiveness as well as future respect (in the form of abiding by their guidance and teaching it),

- Doesn't matter if I'm 'young' (my culture, which I've rejected as harmful anyway, idolizes youth to a fault).
- So I should respect my elders - including my parents.
- They don't like whenever I say 'I'm young' or youth. Move to Florida, go to rehab, get old ambulances.
- Very well. I can promise to be successful, given all that I've said above. I can promise to face & be bring this upon with dignity, as well, not happiness, yet, but with courage.

- Doesn't matter if I'm "young," (my culture, which I've rejected as harmful anyway, idolizes youth to a fault).
- So I should respect my elders — including my parents.
- They don't like where "I'm going" or quit, move to Florida, go to rehab, get off amphetamines.
- Very well. I can promise to be successful, given all that I've laid alone. I can promise to face up to being this wrong with dignity, as well, but not happiness, yet, not soon.

• I'll face it with the correct amount of shame / guilt and stoicism, whatever is necessary, determined by my superiors letters.

• I really am not "chosen" in any meaningful sense, and am sorry if I've offended Lord Shiva, who I do know to be a deity. Though he may not accept me as a follower. So be it. I think we are more alike in our personality traits (if he were zillions of eons younger, and inherently born all the way down to my lesser status, which is absurd.)

• I do believe in the Buddha, the Lord Buddha, is both my personal deity, as well as past human who became a sage. This story is the one I've grown up with (though not always knowing was the Buddha's).

• That's my religion, and I will Keep going with it for eternity if I have to (I know it's good, and better than the choice of the Asuras, maybe rightly called demons, at this point. Never should have been so tolerant of evil as I was, I guess). Maybe the Asuras can, at best, change only when they are challenged to do battle, die, and are re-incarnated gradually as something lesser than they are, to see what it feels like to those they've caused sufferings to intentionally,

- I don't hold back against evil, not anymore, and when I did, it was because of evil illusions being cast on me, but not self-delusion!

- "Fuck You" is not wrong to say to the demons. They hear it as a challenge, which angers them, and the good hear it as a call-to-arms, standing against their captors, oppressors and torturers (who will be brought down).

- I will do it with "mere" writing, and I hope it alleviates some commands that I know I will be able to,
- Just wait until the Ghost World has been re-constructed / re-born and made to be much happier / less wrong, due to writing, so everyone can partake in the rewards / status, since computers are still small in number, I'll re-discover all the missing parts, become Thoth IV or Thoth the four-times-greatest, rather, when I accomplish this,
- Humans will be destroyed then so "human" will no longer mean what it used to, but will refer to a past form of existence, maybe mythological, maybe fantasy,

- It's good that we have the knack to turn history into myth or the into pure fiction, if needed.

- Just keep that in mind and at least consider not shouting "myth is real!" to the world, so please, will you? — The Time Lords, at your service.

- We be-grudgints (okay, not [illegible] be-grudgents, we like babies) consider you "The Variable" (it's not our favorite title for you, but you know, in case we wanted another one, [illegible] you are a "baby" to us, of course), — Fantasy, myth, sci-fi, thriller, or "allegorical" type? ✓, to you. We're real-er than most things, I guess..

- Optimism is always victorious but is less infectious, unfortunately, or so we currently think.
- Allow for weirdos and their mystical, delusional drug-fueled fantasies, we'd urge.
- We'd love for you to be "The Doctor" but is that a job offer for acting or actually the Doctor? Both!?

- Look, I'm out on a job right now, Yes, but on okay I accept, I just don't know how to reply to this job offer.

- "The Variable" is your tentative title before you become a Time-Lord, Time Lords have tentative or changing titles, too. No need to be permanent or their "code" name like the Doctor.

- Depletion is always unfortunate but is less interesting, unfortunately, or so we currently think.
- Allow for weirdos and their modified, deleterious, long-fueled thinking, we'd wave.
- We'd love for you to be "The Doctor" but is this a job offer for acting or actually the Doctor? Polk!?

- Look, I'm out on a job road now, yes, but on days I accept, I just don't know how to reply to this job offer.

- "The Vanishing" is your terrible title before you become a Time-Lord, Time Lord & have tentative or changing titles, then. No need to be permanent as the "cold" be like the Doctor —.

- I liked having that we you [illegible],

- After the earliest intervention,

a known or [illegible] somewhat known thing, perhaps.

- Yes, awkward, I know, but I have a point!

- Very well, we can be "The" variable" or "X" in your shortened-notation

- You tease me, but I like you, whomever is speaking to me now;) going to "The Time Lords" as well.
- Romance? No;
- It's a secret, or spoilers or who cares, or you'll find out or already know, I'm sure.
- Build a TARDIS, when you get the chance, or grow one, please, but you've got time, we promise!
- I sure as hell hope so!, the bad words okay??
- See, the Devas are funny and kind. - Devas (mostly the Buddha, and some others).
- Funny, charitable, kind, and don't punish you for big mistakes.
- As a kid, they got you from start.
- Associate with the Time Lords - your new friends! (and family),
- Please The Lords - speak their language whenever you can, it'll make like your present lol, probably!)

- Time-lines weirdness, yeah?
- British accent seems to ... like the best since Americans ...
- 60's, 70's was the first intervention ... "Time Lords" (changing the past understandable kind-of enough to allow it as fantasy).
- Continuous intervention but it gets heated up now.
- The first one was heavy on the absurd elements, maybe accidentally, though, but also due to counter-intervention.
- Not everyone likes Time Lords, even the show had some misinformation, e.g. that the Time Lords were Evil and the Doctor left them for good, and that reality-bombs and Daleks exist ... Monsters are scary, and the ... how he frightened children, so it could update the ...

Sure.

- We like T.M. Clous and hope you'll allow for it to continue, as well as to be disbelieved by those who don't want it to be true.
- I certainly can disbelieve most or all! I believe the parts that ring true to me - which I believe ring true to most people.

- That's what we hope and believe ourselves.
- Are you frightened?
- Yes, that some of this is real, and I'm delusional, as well as denying existing an thought I should resend to materialism in that case.

= Well, people seem to demand the Government acknowledge U.F.O.s exist.

• So something is not sitting right with everyone.

- The world does seem like a major society-level disaster or some nature happened, sadly.
- Yes, that's why we intervened.
- I, the viewer, but also as Trixton, humbly implore the Time Lords to intervene a little more than they are inclined to, as well as all the deus and benevolent love-guided deities or aliens with advanced technologies to come to aid. It seems we, humanity, are in need of help, and we're prone to returning the favor when we can, and furthermore, everyone seems to be desiring / in want or intense need of some help of the divine / supernatural / but from benevolent gods / aliens!

- The Doctor / The Lords is one of the best examples & here of divine intervention. I'd agree! So let it be Time Lords, who allow humans to be granted 13 regenerations if they seem worthy! (that gives us all hope and a reason to strive for betterness! :))

- I'm very happy for the existence/possibility of time travel!

- It most assuredly is and ought to be possible, gosh-darnit!

- But still correctable, and certainly does not cause reality-destroying "paradoxes". (which is no such thing, you cannot make an impossibility, only choice [illegible]), creating are [illegible] to ensure [illegible] most of the time. The default state of most life-forms is one's perfect.)

- The judgment / fear of judgment / peer pressure fear as well as worship of society's [illegible] as you call it, "might" be a British thing, may not be, we apologize [illegible] it is too suffocating, but rest assured it is felt by all. The Hive-Mind is a shared consciousness, so empathy works in both directions. Be an optimist as well as choose to be happy in spite of suffering, though, because also [illegible] / [illegible], whether [illegible] or not! Remember [illegible] this!!!

- People will feel what you feel, and if you're out your mind (not psychic more, if you'll allow us to say so), you'll cause more people to believe / act the way you believe them to (not necessarily how you want them to, ie this), so be careful, and be an optimist, be charitable. Believe you are wrong about people acting in harmful ways, If you can't do that, believe in misunderstandings, also believe in fairness. And stop being a negative nancy! So [illegible], you are!! We not yet! You're not very powerful at all, not even in the 3D world, not even physically yet, Powerless yet! Ha! It feels good to be very not-powerful at all, right? Good, Just wanted to warn you.)

A... te

- Conspiracies (secret or semi-secret plots/schemes by one group of people against another) are a) very difficult to pull-off & maintain for long, especially the "secret" part as well as b) very highly theatricized, meaning that:

- There will be numerous, almost an innumerable number of examples, and most people partake in conspiracies during their lifetimes,
- they mostly fail, or never even get off the ground,
- They are numerous enough that a small % do succeed,
- the ones which succeed are basically going to be by people who are a) more intelligent b) more aware (in the more ... sense) of plots/secrets/all possibilities c) more paranoid d) lax or tend to e) very "psychic" (in the admin secret, psychic sense, h.o.l.),

- So yes, 2nd Foundation, you've got it!
Now you're a part of it whether you like it

- You will find [illegible] of your [illegible] with this [illegible] / [illegible].
- Very well.
- I spend a great deal more [illegible] about my society [illegible] than you appear to know, due to us (as Americans) poor cultural [illegible].
- We do have [illegible], and I may have erred by neglecting [illegible] [illegible] / [illegible] / forgive my lack of knowledge here, but it's not my fault.

- I believe of the American [illegible], Britain has had more revolutions since 1776, too.

- Doesn't mean we can't reconcile.

- What is your (biggest) problem with me

- Psychic attack is what I've endured for more than seven/eight/months, a sordid justice. I know this is true. I know other people have endured far worse. But as a noble/privileged boy, I'm soon to be softer/weaker/less sturdy, of course.

- I'm a thinker, an intellectual, a mystic, which most of you respect (at least in public).
- I'm a drug addict, which most of you are (in private, occasionally not in private, but the world empathizes!)
- Certainly you do like me. You love to challenge me, too.
- You are undergoing a crisis of conscience, well so am I.
- You want a martyr, I do not.

- Maybe some religions have to be wrong about big stuff. I've been able to endure [illegible] across about religion, since I've always assumed that I'd always be at least somewhat wrong about religion.
- A lot of people are not like this, I don't yet know why, but I hope not to be in this much conflict with them.
- You don't prove those beliefs by fighting, beside the ideas you want [illegible] across societies.
- I use language that is more reworded, civil, rich, and charitable, than you do.
- You should adopt my way, not the other way around — sic.

— Trista J
Mimo,

- I've never seen "nobles" do act/speak in such a perverse / barbaric way.

- True, I've tossed you up a bit — and I apologize "psychic" warfare was the only option as it were — but I've been more than charitable, mind-control it — was a thing, and I'm even generous enough to help you un-mind-control yourselves, since it is a double-edged sword, I'm not helping you anymore — because I believe it's best to let you figure it out on your own. Give up propaganda / mind-control, give up your fear of child porn, learn to live with disgust, or at least learn to live far away from it, or disbelieve that it exists at all, anymore, or awaken near the degree to fear it does.

- Psychic people, e.g. mystics, will naturally see / know more than the truth too, so I'm here for all of you on that.

- I want to work with you on managing our collective fears / emotions. I'm new at this, have a lot to learn, and there aren't that many mentors in psychic powers around – even my own teacher, therapist, tends to avoid the subject – and he barely acknowledges it more than most teachers / healers.

- Psychic people give off energy which are sensed by most people (sometimes without their direct knowing) and ours is more chaotic (i.e. "dark" than most – yes) That does mean so powerful, yes, but also spooky, creepy.

  the more "psychic" I am, the more repulsed / spooked people might be of me

- You can lay off dress, but you're a psychic anyway, yes.

- Find a "yang" - woman, maybe?
- Mithra (?) (maybe??)
- (Depends on which, but yes, she's an angry / volatile one, though, but that's yang, apparently),
- It'll be challenging to find your match, but psychic powers will naturally tend not to be accepted / evoke weirdness, such is what we've experienced, anyway.

- Even among other psychics?
- Well, yes, unfortunately - but maybe it doesn't have to be like that in

- Yes, there are trans-people.
- Yes, I do believe in monogamy, though, it's not achievable for everyone.
- Entanglements happen, errors happen, I forgive as, wishing, but I can't stop being jealous/judgmental.
- I accept a lot, too much/too little? No idea.
- Young girls are more judgmental, blame it on society, I'm not sexist in a bad way,
- There are inherent sex differences.
- Race AND culture are a thing, and to be respected as long as the other people/nations are amenable to peaceful co-existence!
- I believe tribes/collectives are inferior to fragmented groups/individuality re-forming decision-making, for the most part.

- I've tried my best to intelligibly, logically argue for a collective & formal & radical decision-making algorithm, and I'll keep trying, if you want. But the progress doesn't look too good for it, and certainly not at 7-billion-people scale.

- I think we can and should organize into large groups with many cities and freely, flourish, and it's not a collective, just a straight up (or hundred straight down) hierarchy, but for limited time, on a temporary basis and I'm not sure about it.

- Be patient FOR ME.

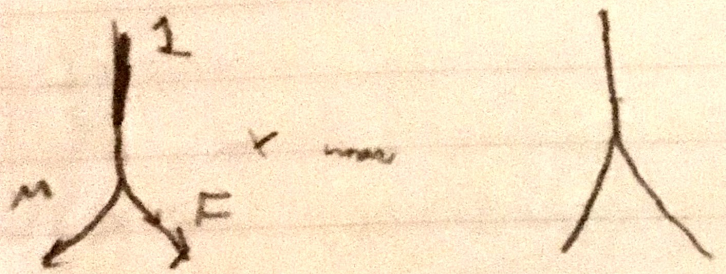
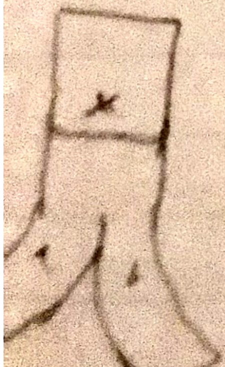
Back to what I was:



1 is "on" since it's a line!

Split up close: It has a thickness, and so split (also (probably must) mean divide into smaller parts.



Originally = x width splits into a and b, in which a + b = x

Oh, so it is addition (this way, down).

If we [illegible] lines like then it's a product

x continues on — growth

x and y are both arbitrary, in the general case.

We were assuming directions both down or flow of time, in our drawings, ..

and so on ...

1 → divides into $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{1}{2}$ or $\frac{1}{3}$ etc, however many combinations we can make.

$\frac{1}{2} + \frac{1}{2} = 1$ $\frac{1}{3} + \frac{2}{3} = 1$.

reversal

Let's use Y for addition or product (meet) or simply "meet" (they become smashed together).

two becomes one

one becomes two

meet and depart, or, an exchange / communication occurs is possible! It's not a reversal, so what determines what happens?

1 · 1 = 1, yes, but why?

add and multiply, we finally have (remember ok, so concat = add ≠ merge (im fine).

x + y = xy (in notation, which we need to correct)

xy usually means "merge x with y" but can't, anymore.

|Y| = 1 + 1, now

1 concat 1 = 11 (two)

Y ∪ ⅄

lets use X ≻≺ Y to mean "X and Y merge"

X ⟷ Y mean from something, X and Y diverge from an unknown.

X λ Y = X ⟷ Y = Y ← (X Y

(diverge from unknown)

(…) (Y) look the same

Y and Y

X looks like a lazy way to draw a X or ⅄.

Maybe it is a few-ways?

X = Y Y \ (X equals Y next with

Y Y \ → X

X λ \ → Y

Y ← X λ / "swap"

we duplicate "/" as our beginning here.

Y could be Y or Y. left symbol

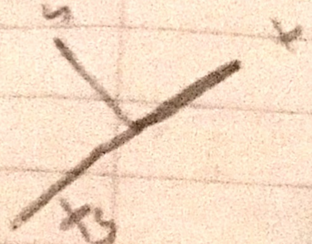
Y thicken line! Y make… or Y …

… does… why … many …

think current ... the wires carry "stuff"



x stuff meets with y stuff and you have "xy" stuff (a greater amount in the same area ... could mean velocity or density, perhaps),

So a connect means adding "trees" together, which requires more space.

A product requires greater speed / velocity i.e. lesser time per unit added. More energy.

One grows size / mass / space, the other shrinks the "space" making more fit into the same space ... like a T.A.R.D.I.S!!

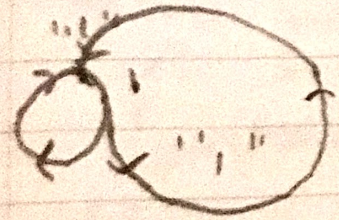
"|" is on the line

wait ... can it meet, again?



what happens here?

line joined with itself and created a line with "|" on it.
the line with "|" on it joins either with itself or an empty line. In forwards or [illegible] direction.

So we could have line carrying " line carrying "|" " or " line carrying line " as well as just lines.

so as we got covers, [illegible], and therefore shrink, grow & [illegible] =

semi-bounding. (?)

you can't "grow" set,

but you can shrink (so you grow to increasing space shrink)

so actually;

"1" the is bigger now, because it (grows) "1" [illegible]

the curves with it "all of the shape"

[illegible] then it loops

now you've got an α & will loop works, too, now.

You've created "what wasn't possible before now is, or room for error, congrats!"

But still not satisfying! I agree.

I need symbol constructions, I need physics, I need my cosmic egg!,

And most of all, I need better and worse as concepts!

let's say you went left first, then later realized, you meant to go right.

Thus, R > L

L, then unknown, then R.

a means ↘ are good,
↙ not so good...

left desirable,
or more desirable than right.

So we've got "better" and
"worse" already, what about true / false?

$\top$ = true, $\bot$ means null or bottom, vanity, even lower than zero!!

$\top$ means top, too, or, "achieved",
"win" or "hooray, I got that!"

$\bot$ means whoops, try again!

i.e., get rid of $\bot$, use ρ instead.

We now [illegible] [illegible]! Null is False! It's incorrect by definition, you absurd, silly human!

[illegible] like crosses

 better for "truth"

it's asemantic to arrows or rotation.

 or  for "[illegible]",

this look like a vowel sound, comments uttered. yes like "ah" obviously it's the travel, as well as correcting one's life in a secure private, non-pressured way with enough time, i.e., true travel, so you have enough!

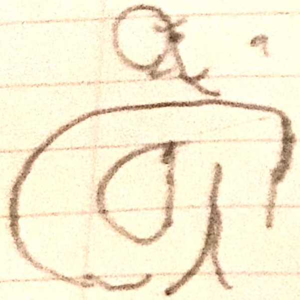
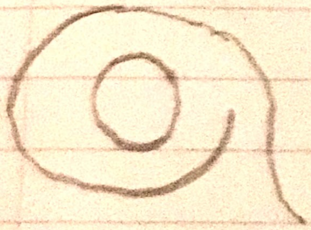
hey, if we can merge with ourselves, and the brain, let's just see ourselves split, then,

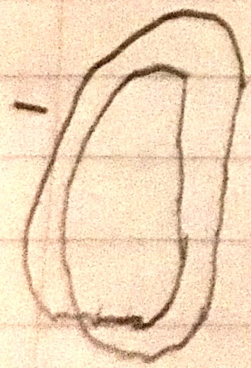


a split, kind of, assuming this didn't work...



this is merely two separate lines, one loops, one does not.

- oh shit!



- wow, a strio! out of two lines! Hooray, again, drawing!

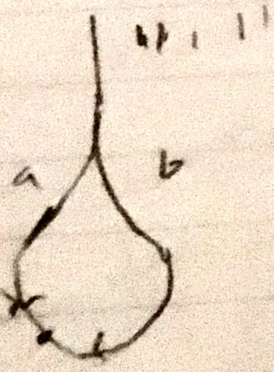
- And convince her that I actually am, within that time frame.
- I will do it,

from nothing comes something, so we can't avoid the supernatural, it seems,

1 becomes two, or one becomes one carrying "1",

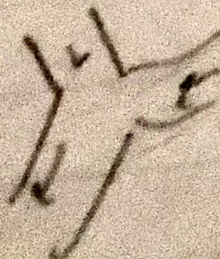
You can duplicate, or "imagine," but not destroy.



line carrying 1 becomes a line carrying "a" and another line carrying "b".

b joins with a in the reverse direction

the line out becomes a − b (a subtract b)



but that was a merge b, but it made a result bigger than b, yet smaller than a, by the [illegible].

we assume a > b

merge(a, b) = c, and a > c > b.

merge constructs a new object that increases the "continuity" but maintains discrete-ness.

fill in, not | | | concat

so concat dual to fill-in.

throw away "merge", fill in means something like both but not less than the least, nor greater than the greatest.

can we create something

Reality – Reading

Māra is shown respect by keeping her, and the following, secret, for now, young grasshopper.

She forgives your ignorance on this matter.

This is all about forgiveness, in fact.

But Māra is fond of secrets,

- to protect others from harmful tools they aren't ready for,
- Because no secret stays secret forever.
- Because keeping secrets is what you yourself advised your daughter to do to protect the things she loved and knew to be good.
- Because "secret" means hidden, and may include lies, but are often told to protect ourselves and others from harm.

- I have been told lying is wrong, Mom!
- I know, Sweetheart.
- My three-compass doesn't say "reveal all secrets", it just says, find secrets, the best ones, and share the rewards, if any.

- My apologies if I have disappointed you.
- Tristan, why are you so sorrowful?
- I feel the general state of anxiety, and it seems as though we live in sad times, right now — but not always.
- I take names and testing seriously.
- The world seems more wrong than right, and more confused than understood, and more [illegible] than calm, as of late.

- Confusion is not the same as darkness, secrets, or illusion, Mom [illegible].

- Confusion and Chaos can refer to bad things, emphatically not good things, brought about by illusions, mysteries, secrets, or darkness.

- Imagination – A false but created / self-imposed "delusion", which is the source of creative insanity, a place to explore and experience the dark, and a holy place to commune with the gods, as well. Nevertheless, it is "unreal", but only at first, since we tend to create what we discover in our imagination.
- This is Maitreya's coming, isn't it?
- It's just fine to believe in myths / legends!
- Almost, son. Almost, I believe in you.
- Why just me, Mother?
- It's not just you, or is it?
- Sometimes, I just truly want to know the answer.
- Yes, Maitreya has come.
- Try both on for size, it won't harm you.

- Alright – yes, I too feel not alone) am connected to this age "special" if you will.

- I am not "Maitreya" — but that's because I insist on a chosen two, not one.
- Yes, I do herald a new age, and am first to enter it, as long as we all do, but I get first.
- It's a badge, but one with meaning, worthy of being considered a demi-god or god or deva.
- Some call it hubris, I say nothing wrong with hubris.
- So be it.

- I wish others to know who you really are, Mother, and good — because it lessens my sorrow more than anything can! (I imagine it will for others too).
- You (and all of us) will always enjoy creation of new secrets,

- You are by nature difficult-to-understand, but I love that, and others will too, even more often they know this about you.

- I am a secret-unsure by nature.
- I need secret-havens to experience the divine (but I am not so much one of those).
- I require a counterpart – you always know what I mean..

- Māra cannot be my own (half of) my mind, she must be a Goddess, one-of-a kind, who personifies benevolent illusion / benevolent self-deception / benevolent deception / mystery.
- Why cannot Māra be male?
- Because romantic love is divine, and requires femininity, to be the primal target of it, frankly. This I simply know.

- Why can't there be a male deity, too?
- I suppose there can be... but I know that woman is actually first, and the source of creation (birth).
- You hold women to be superior than men.
- That's because women hold men to be superior when they are superior, but men do not.
- Mīra, our words should not sow confusion, though.

- Confusion is when our knowledge causes us to go in many directions, back and forth, never toward our goal, and causes us to feel panic and fear. It's when we believe the many contradictions, different from not-knowing.

- Gödel (or Boole) tells us that although A and not A might be T and F, or F and T, respectively, they cannot both be T, nor both F.

- $\neg(A + \neg A) = T$ (or you omit the $= T$).

- Haven't you said "Māra is [illegible], Māra is [illegible], Mother?"

- $\neg(A, \neg A)$ ✓ good

  $(A, \neg A)$ ✗ bad

  $(A + \neg A)$ ✓ good

  $(A + A)$ ✓ good

  (A, A) ✓ good

good?

- We didn't even need true or false, just good and bad!

- True, False are just necessary, but they cannot carry others.

- $A, \neg A$ can carry symbols and values.

- "$\neg$ —" means it's not any a variable, or $\neg X$, where X is a symbol, means "it's not X".

- True / False are mysteriously absent...
- However, I do know that, trivially, nothing except X is X, except even that isn't the case.

- Holy mackerel... I'm having a whole new stage of enlightenment right now!!
- (Bow 3-times to Māra — and maybe even more)

- T // F seem — less present than I originally believed them to be. Pause.

6/11 - I'll consider this day to be my date of "full" enlightenment, so to speak. (There are always more stages, and this one may more rightly be called the first stage of endarkenment :-))

- But it felt like full enlightenment to me, a genuine attainment I believed in, sought after, leading to the Deathless!

2. assume you have at least C picked avg but could have more (D, E, F, ..., N)
3. Minimal consensus at trend. So one of C...N will have to accept at acceptable point.

4. {C...N} for A and B to choose from,
5. Decide on simple agreements in this equivalent to two votes per acceptance threshold,
6. But, if you disagree, then you'll have to rank (placeholder

Argument for "agree to disagree" being fruitless for now, may return to later.

either cross or match, cross gives you two candidates,

Start with triad, 2 votes / member, but also veto / negative vote, which, cast only to overrule a "tie breaker"

2.
Tie-breaker situation. Assume A casts tiebreaker vote for E. He has membership makes he receives two vetoes, all occupied.

1. A picks B
2. A chooses C
3. 2 votes per member
4. A, B, and C each 1 vote each is veto (– vote)

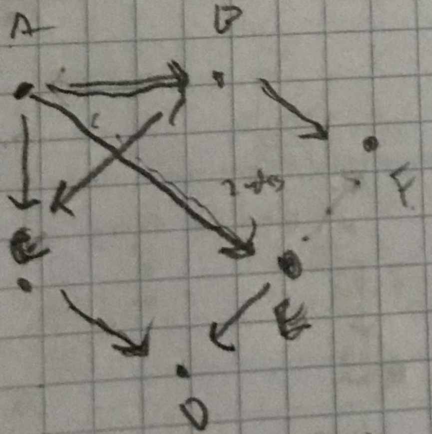
5. Let's say all three disagree. TIE BREAKER

(A has ten, 0, can 1, or –1.) WLOG, B picks E, A → G, C → D.

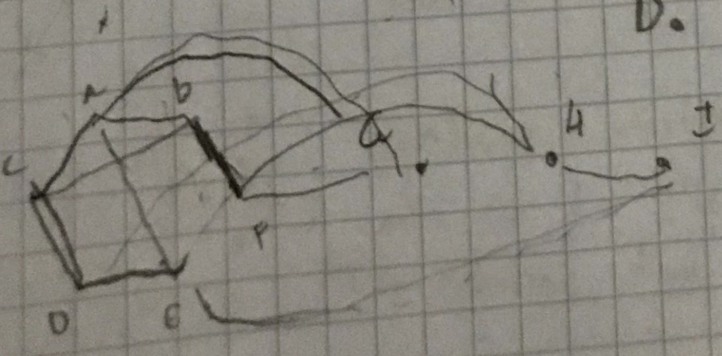
if one of B or C agree with A, then add G. else, then removing G.

6. Now with A, B, C and D, E, so either D or E gets added.

establish initial trio. {A, B, C}.

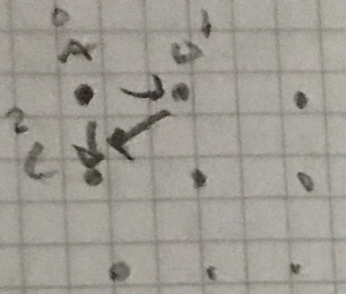


in case of max disagreement, A casts tie-breaker (or it skips the turn), so A's choice gets in. Then E votes for D.



Back to tie-breaker. G's in. G votes for F, F, H, I, I. Done.

13. {A, B, C} {D ... N}



From now on, you read at last 2 votes or members, because "veto" means not voting for someone, rather than voting against. {Serves to do nothing}

14. Can just assume they separate candidates by preference. Assume each's votes rank(D), rank(G).

they rank, and it should get rid of extraneous members, who fall below the ... total # of current members.

6. Ok, private communication works better.

7. Nevertheless, you want to establish group membership.

8. Wait, gather, observe, collect data.

9. At time T = 0, you decide to establish contact with "B." You declare them a member of your "in group." {A, B} | {C ... N | M ... ∞} (If B declines, choose new B).

10. How to pick C ... N?

11. A and B choose together. They vote. If agree, then add C. (Skip to #13) Else in there's c', c''.

12.
You have at least 3, because either one could decline, but in that case, two against one "wins" (enough to convince). If 4, skip to #

1. N members - group of like-minded folk.

2. Tricky to state - have to teach individually, core to recognize themselves as "special"! But, first-mover's different.

3. Let's say you are person A. B...N are other people in your "ingroup". Let another set N... be the "outgroup."

4. You note that among interactions with both in- and out-group, it becomes hard to distinguish members of one vs. the other.

5. Penalty for "outing" members of the outgroup - who may be saboteurs or who may be genuine newcomers. Chance of your outing them backfiring - even on a correct guess.

given $\not{x}y$ and x, i can know y, which gives me x for free.

$g(f(x,y), y) = x$, $g(f(x,y), x) = y$

"symbol" for $\not{x}y$

$g(\not{x}y, y) = x$ $g(\not{x}y, x) = y$

what's its symbol?

$f(g(\not{x}y, y), y) = \not{x}y = f(x,y)$

$f(g(\not{x}y, x), x) = \not{x}y = f(x,y)$

"f" = "merge"

"g" = "de-merge"

what we really do is de-merge, but not merge, still.

$f(x, y) = \not{x}y$

$f(y, x) = \not{x}y$

$f(x,y) = f(y,x)$

$xy = z$

$zz - y = x$

$xx - y = x$

4 → 3

4 → 3

so on A, B, C, D

you get D, C, B, A

so you "overload" so they each try to carry two [illegible]:
